Buffalo Soldiers Day observed with ceremony, tours

New CDC design complete

by Christine Paul/U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Public Affairs

One of the biggest challenges our nation's service members and their families face is moving from installation to installation across the country, sometimes across the world, every couple of years. The Army uses standard designs when constructing facilities on their installations to help reduce the stress and uncertainty that service members and their families can experience during a permanent change of station. This helps to instill a sense of familiarity across installations.

Child development centers, perhaps some of the most critical facilities on an installation, are no exception. Fort Leavenworth is currently experiencing a shortage of space to accommodate the child care needs of its military families. The installation has tasked the Kansas City District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, with the mission of constructing a new 37,000-square-foot child development center for more than 300 children, ranging in age from infant to 5 years old.

"Fort Leavenworth has needed (a new child development center) for quite some time," said Carissa Brown, chief of architecture and interior design at the Kansas City District. "We helped provide a solution for their child care needs."

Although the facility was designed using a standard design, the team at the Kansas City District faced several unique challenges. The site of the facility is located near two streams and a main road on the installation on the east side of Hancock Avenue between Kansas and Iowa avenues.

This resulted in some geotechnical and civil engineering challenges, which the team was eager to provide solutions for. Additionally, a facility dedicated to child care requires unique considerations for safety and security.

"There were a lot of really unique challenges in the design beyond what we would typically see," said Christina Gatewood, interior designer and technical lead for the project. "We were always considering what the children might be doing, how they will maneuver around the facility. You really do want those protective measures."

Despite working within strict regulations, the team was able to incorporate some design elements into the final design that will hopefully create a better experience for the children and families who use the facility.

"Our architect created a really nice entryway feature to the vestibule," Brown said. "We also had one of our landscape architects create some really interesting colored paving designs leading up to the entrance ... to create some interest for the children and families as they walk up to the facility."

Because the new facility is a top priority for the Army, the design team worked closely with Fort Leavenworth throughout the entire design process to ensure expectations and timelines were met. Bi-weekly team meetings allowed everyone to come together and discuss the status of the project and work through any challenges.

Internally, the project was not only a chance to contribute to the Army's commitment to improving quality of

Fort Leavenworth community makes recent blood drive a success

by Munson Army Health Center Public Affairs

Members of the Fort Leavenworth community turned out and made a difference during a blood drive conducted July 11 at Frontier Chapel.

“Officials from the blood center gave us a preliminary report of 64 units collected, far surpassing the 40-unit goal. These donations may help as many as 192 people in the Kansas City area get the lifesaving blood they need,” said Col. Shane Mendenhall, Munson Army Health Center director and commanding officer.

The event was conducted by Community Blood Center of Kansas City, one of two organizations that regularly conduct blood drives on post.

“The drive was very well attended. It went smoothly, and we sincerely appreciate all your efforts in helping us save lives,” said Wendy Eisele, a CBC Kansas City official who shared a summary of the event, coordinated through the health center’s clinical laboratory.

Some blood collection organizations in the Kansas City area have declared a blood emergency due to a significant drop in blood donations.

According to a statement from CBC Kansas City, in the past several weeks, donations have been hundreds short of what is needed to meet hospital demand, placing a strain on the region’s blood supply during the critical summer months.

Officials from the American Red Cross, which also works with Munson Army Health Center to conduct blood drives on post, said the organization is also seeing collections struggle this summer, and there is a demand for all types of blood, especially O negative.

“Full summer calendars and holiday plans may prevent regular donors from being able to give, but every donation counts in the mission to keep blood products stocked for patients who need them,” said Evan Woods, account manager from the American Red Cross of Greater Kansas City and Northwest Missouri. “It’s also recognized as a time of higher risk for car accidents, especially among teen drivers. A single car accident victim may require as many as 100 units of blood.”

from post housing areas shared the message with residents in their communities.

“I scheduled my appointment when they passed the word to the mayors that they needed more donors,” said Shanna Cheatham, Pawnee Village mayor, who donated with friends.

CBC Kansas City shared in its preliminary report that the event had 31 first-time donors.

“We appreciate the volunteers to who came out to support the blood drive, and we really would like to keep the momentum going,” Mendenhall said.

The next opportunity on post to donate blood this summer is from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 17 at Frontier Chapel.

CBC Kansas City’s next event on post is scheduled for Nov. 6.

Eisele reminded donors that they need to wait 56 days between donations.

Army Training Support Center, CAC-T, welcomes new commander

by Cierra Clark/Army Training Support Center/Combined Arms Center-Training

FORT EUSTIS, VIRGINIA — Soldiers and civilians from across the organization attended the Army Training Support Center change of command July 19 at Fort Eustis, Virginia.

Combined Arms Center-Training Deputy Commanding General Brig. Gen. Jeremy Wilson presided over the ceremony honoring outgoing ATSC commander Col. John Barry Jr. and incoming commander Col. John Lopes.

The change of command ceremony is a military tradition representing the handover of authorities and responsibilities within a unit or command. The colors flown at every ceremony represent the history, tradition and accomplishments of a unit throughout its history. The passing of the colors signifies more than a change in power and authority, it signifies a new chapter for the team in its long history of service to the nation and the soldiers it was sworn to support.

The ceremony began with ceremonial music from the 208th Army Reserve Band, the posting of the colors, the arrival of the official party, and an invocation from Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Light Shin, deputy command chaplain, Training and Doctrine Command.

Barry's wife, Susan, and daughter, Sarah, were each presented with red roses, signifying the farewell of a person with love and appreciation for contributions during their time at ATSC. Barry then presented his son, Owen, with the last commander's coin he would give out as the ATSC commander.

Lopes' wife, Xiomara, and daughter, Anna, received yellow roses, the color of new beginnings, welcoming them to ATSC. Lopes then presented his son, Jefferson, with the first commander's coin he gave out as the new ATSC commander.

During the ceremony, the colors were passed from the keeper of the colors, Command Sgt. Maj. James Card, ATSC senior enlisted advisor, to Barry, who then passed them to Wilson. Wilson then passed them to Lopes to symbolize the change in leadership. Card received the colors back from Lopes as his first act of loyalty as the new commander.

During his remarks, Wilson spoke about Barry's courageous and steadfast leadership during his time at ATSC.

"Colonel Barry's record of success over the last two years can directly be attributed to his skills as a leader, mentor, problem solver and trainer," Wilson said. "As the commander of the Army Training Support Center, he ensured ATSC provided exceptional training support products, services, and facilities to soldiers and civilians worldwide."

During his remarks, Barry shared memories with the team.

"These last two years have been my most rewarding position to date," Barry said. "Together, we, at ATSC, have made lasting impacts on how the Army trains its soldiers and formations."

Barry, who assumed command of ATSC in July 2022, expressed his appreciation of the soldiers and civilians who worked alongside him during his time as commander.

"As with any successful organization, it's the people who make it great, and without them I would not have been successful," Barry said.

Prior to the change of command ceremony, Michael Formica, executive deputy to the TRADOC commanding general, presented Barry the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of his duties while in command.

Barry expressed confidence and appreciation for the incoming commander and his family. Barry will now retire and begin life as a civilian.

Lopes thanked Barry for the seamless transition during his remarks.

"I want to express my deep appreciation for your exceptional leadership and unwavering commitment to this organization," Lopes said. "The accomplishments of ATSC are a testament to your extraordinary leadership."

Lopes said he is honored to be joining the ranks of ATSC and looks forward to working with the team.

CALL military analyst supports summer hire program in Germany

Summer hire program participants take the civilian oath, led by Col. Justin Reese, Joint Multinational Readiness Center commander of Operations Group, June 17 in Hohenfels, Germany.

by Center for Army Lessons Learned

Center for Army Lessons Learned Military Analyst Forward Willis Heck provided 240 hours of mentorship and support to the U.S. Army Europe and Africa (USAREUR-AF) summer hire program June 16 through July 26.

The six-week program provided Department of Defense dependents 14-20 years old the opportunity for employment at various agencies at Army garrisons within Germany.

Sworn in as Department of the Army civilians, participants performed clerical and labor functions within their respective communities.

Participants received monetary compensation for their daily contributions to assigned departments. The program provided training on budgeting, resumé building, public speaking, professionalism and proper business etiquette.

Supervisors from numerous departments supporting the Joint Multinational Readiness Center received their summer hires. The JMRC CALL Detachment received two participants for the duration of the program.

Each participant assigned to the CALL Detachment provided three workforce industries of their interest. The CALL Detachment provided them a list of the top 10 colleges and professional certifications associated with their fields of interest. Heck coordinated workforce industry engagements with subject matter experts and professionals throughout the Hohenfels community in veterinary medicine, family medicine, journalism/broadcasting, biology/ornithology, sports management and sports medicine.

The workforce industry engagements exposed the teens to professionals working in their fields of interest. During these engagements the teens prepared questions for the subject matter experts, focused on individual preparation and the path to achieving these occupational specialties.

While with the CALL Detachment, the teens mainly provided clerical support. Their daily duties focused on customer service, physical security, inventory management, product development, public speaking, as well as proper facilities and property management.

The following highlights some of their accomplishments provided to the CALL Detachment:

- Inventoried more than 5,000 professional publications in the CALL library
- Organized and archived 788 historical publications and 314 digital video discs
- Created Excel spreadsheet listing more than 5,000 publications
- Developed information briefs and presented to JMRC senior leaders
- Provided customer service to more than 15 U.S. and multinational military members
- Maintained monthly training calendar for the six-week program
- Painted the CALL Detachment conference room

The teens also attended weekly training that covered business etiquette, workplace relationship building, work-site health and safety, volunteering and financial matters. Heck provided a presentation to the participants on public speaking and professionalism. The presentation covered the seven elements and 10 tips on becoming a better public speaker. He also briefed on the eight characteristics of professionalism in the workplace and how the summer hires can exhibit those characteristics.

Upon conclusion of the program, participants provided the JMRC Commander of Operations Group a brief overview of their assigned roles and responsibilities. The teens also briefed their progress achievements working toward their short- and long-term goals since beginning the program. Preceding the briefs, the COG provided certificates of appreciation to all summer hire participants.

CALL analysts continue to provide support and assist with their professional expertise in many facets. The JMRC CALL Detachment frequently hosts visits from U.S., multinational and allied partners. The detachment also provides timely and relevant information through dissemination on lessons learned and best practices supporting the Joint Multinational Readiness Center in the European Theater.

diers” by Native Americans because they shared attributes associated with the buffalo, such as being courageous.

Pettigrew described the Battle of the Saline River of August 1867, one of the first recorded battles between black soldiers from Company F, 10th Cavalry, and Cheyenne warriors, and noted that the battle location in northwest Kansas has been confirmed in recent years with several artifacts discovered.

“Given what we now know, (that battle) proves why we were the first and only soldiers given the nickname Buffalo Soldiers — first time in a battle and outnumbered 2.5 to 1, (with) no reinforcements, with losses of their six to our one.”

Pettigrew reemphasized that “Buffalo Soldier” is derived from character, not characteristics.

“If they say it is the hair, remind them of what they did under that hair. Character makes the difference,” he said. “The popular story about the name ‘Buffalo Soldier’ having roots in the appearance of our skin tone and hair denies the courage in the Battle of the Saline River and many others in the years to come. Focusing on the characteristics of these brave soldiers, many fresh out of being enslaved, denies the actions and character of those brave soldiers underneath that hair.”

The July 26 ceremony coincided with the anniversary of the desegregation of the Army in 1948. July 28, when the 9th and 10th Cavalry Regiments were established in 1866, is the designated date for Buffalo Soldiers Day.

“It is absolutely an honor to be here to celebrate this remarkable legacy of Buffalo Soldiers in our United States Army, which goes back many, many decades, in fact, centuries, as most of us know today,” Training and Doctrine Command Commanding General Gen. Gary Brito said. “And they are clearly represented by you, friends and descendants also, some of the most heroic soldiers that our Army has seen.”

Bruto said that the original Buffalo Soldiers left a legacy for current soldiers to emulate.

“These men made up the initial regiments of the Buffalo Soldiers, and today continue to give us all an example to strive for.”

Bruto said the Army values of 1866 might not have been described as they are today, but the Buffalo Soldiers embodied the principles of loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service, honor, integrity and personal courage, and were committed to values of patriotism.

Bruto said members of the 9th and 10th Cavalry Regiments went on to teach horse-mounted drills and tactics at the U.S. Military Academy. He said they were the right people at the right time to strengthen and protect the nation and train its future leaders.

Bruto highlighted some accomplishments of Buffalo Soldiers who earned the Medal of Honor, including Pvt. Fitz Lee, member of the 10th Cavalry Regiment who is buried in the Fort Leavenworth National Cemetery and for whom the Post Theater (Fitz Lee Hall) and Lee House on Organ Avenue, home of the Mission Command Training Program, are named. He said soldiers like Sgt. George Jordan — who was born into slavery, enlisted in 1866 and served with the 9th Cavalry Regiment — were paid only a few dollars a month, but the Army offered African Americans opportunities, as well as hope that they would be respected and recognized as Americans.

“Often stationed in only company-sized units, Buffalo Soldiers, as mentioned by Mr. Pettigrew, conducted missions that proved critical to the security and expansion of our fledgling country, as well as repairing military telegraphs, constructing new roads, guarding essential water holes, escorting wagons and survey parties, those little less-desirable missions that clearly made our Army serve well and created that western expansion we needed.”

Bruto said the legacy of the Buffalo Soldiers continues to inspire today’s Army.

“Lineage from the Buffalo Soldiers regiments is carried on in the 1st Cavalry Division, the 4th Infantry Division and the 25th Infantry Division as recognition of their instrumental role in the success and the building of the Army ... and our country as well.”

life for soldiers and their families, but it was also an opportunity for the team to sharpen their technical skills. Because it was done in-house, the design staff at the Kansas City District worked on the entirety of the design rather than contracting outside architect engineer firms to complete it.

“This was a great project, and we had a good team that mixed some junior designers with some senior designers” said Eric Shumate, chief of engineering at the Kansas City District. “It was both a success for delivering for the installation but also for developing our staff.”

Shumate said roughly 75 percent of military design work at the district is completed using outside architecture and engineering firms, so to celebrate the in-house design completion, Col. Travis Rayfield, former commander of the Kansas City District, joined the team for the official signing of the design in April 2024.

“It’s always a point of pride when we do an in-house design,” Shumate said. “It’s very satisfying for the team whenever we can (celebrate) that.”

Although the team was happy to celebrate the milestone of completing the design, their primary focus was providing a resilient facility for the service members of Fort Leavenworth. For Gatewood, being a parent helped her understand the importance of completing the mission.

“As somebody who has kids and lets other people take care of them ... you want someplace they can feel at home and happy,” she said. “For the parents that are navigating different installations, they can feel some sense of normalcy in child care.”

The weeklong initiative paired a dedicated team of FLFHC technicians with private contractors to systematically validate and fix routine issues identified during the summer surge of new residents on Fort Leavenworth.

Pets of the Week

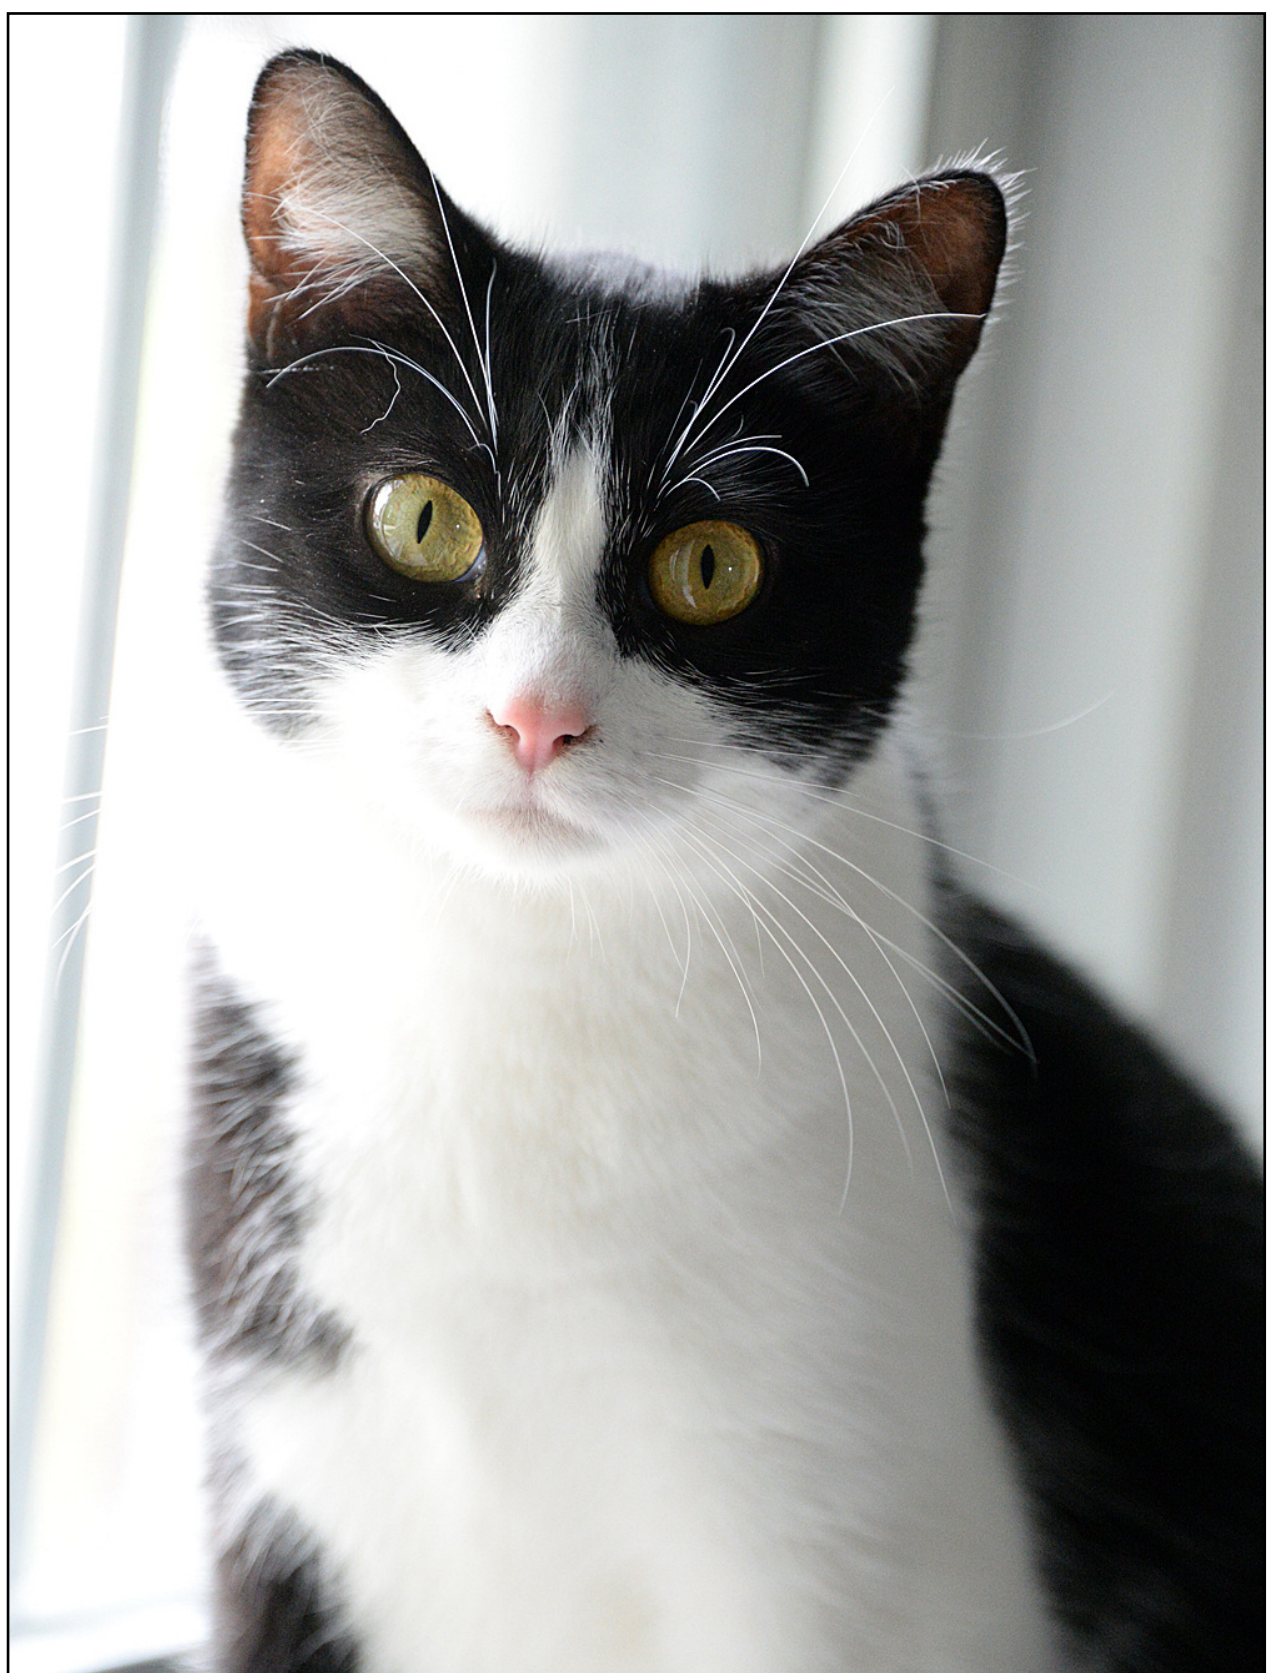

Loki, ABOVE, and Rebel Kitty, RIGHT, are two adult shorthair cats currently available for adoption at the Fort Leavenworth Stray Facility. Spay/neuter surgery, vaccinations and microchipping are included in their adoption fees.

The Fort Leavenworth Stray Facility at 510 Organ Ave. is open 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and by appointment for pre-approved adopters.

See www.FLSF.petfinder.com or call 913-684-4939 for more information. E-mail fortleavenworthstray-facility@gmail.com for an adoption application.

Volunteers are needed to help cover pet care shifts, walk dogs, clean kennels and more. Foster homes for adoptable pets are also needed. To apply to volunteer with the Fort Leavenworth Stray Facility, enter ZIP code 66027, then search for "stray animal facility" at <https://vmis.armyfamilywebportal.com/>.

Munson Army Health Center is currently scheduling an additional round of school physicals required for enrollment in Kansas schools. According to Kansas law, physicals are required for students 8 years old or younger who are NEW to Kansas schools. School physicals are not required for students attending Missouri schools, only current proof of immunization, which is available from the MHS GENESIS Patient Portal or from MAHC's patient administration section. Patients should call MAHC's appointment line (913-684-6250) weekdays from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays to check appointment availability for a required school physical. Be aware, routine physicals not required for enrollment may be delayed, when medically appropriate, until late summer/early fall. Another round of school physicals will be announced later this summer. Currently MAHC is not offering sports physicals for students who choose to participate in extracurricular activities. Sports physicals on their own, are not a TRICARE-covered benefit, and instead have historically been offered as a space-available service. Current staffing does not support the extra service without impacting access for our patients with acute and/or chronic health care needs. For more information on TRICARE-covered physicals, visit <https://tricare.mil/CoveredServices/IsItCovered/Physicals>.

Munson Army Health Center Public Affairs

Munson Army Health Center's basement at 550 Pope Ave. is one of the designated tornado shelters on post.

If a tornado watch is activated after duty hours, Medical Department Activity personnel will open the health center for those needing shelter. The building will remain open until all watches or warnings are lifted.

SORRY!

SPORTS PHYSICALS ARE CURRENTLY UNAVAILABLE

Sports physicals are currently unavailable from MAHC at this time. While MAHC has offered sports physicals as a courtesy in previous years, the current staffing cannot support the service at this time without impacting access for patients with acute and/or chronic healthcare needs. Furthermore, MAHC cannot refer patients to the network for a sports physical, because sports physicals are not a TRICARE-covered benefit. MAHC providers may complete sports physical paperwork in conjunction with a TRICARE-covered physical, like a school physical or routine physical; however, appointments for routine physicals might be delayed, when medically appropriate, until late summer/early fall when additional providers will be on board.
